TEACHING

LECTURER AT UCLA SCHOOL OF THEATER, FILM AND TELEVISION FROM 2014-PRESENT

I teach courses on Lighting Design, Collaborative Design in Production and Introduction to Design for both graduate and undergraduate students. In addition, I advise student designers on practical projects within the department.

LECTURER AT USC SCHOOL OF DRAMATIC ARTS FROM 2019-PRESENT

I teach Lighting Design 1 and 2 as well as Stage Lighting for non-majors. Lighting Design 1 and 2 provide a progressive course of undergraduate study aimed primarily at majors interested in exploring the concepts behind the development and implementation of performance lighting. Stage Lighting is aimed primarily at non-majors and explores lighting as a means of artistic expression and communication tool. In addition, I advise student designers on practical projects within the department.

LECTURER AT SARAH LAWRENCE COLLEGE FROM 2006-2008

I taught courses on Lighting Design for Dance and worked with graduate and undergraduate students on both the theoretical and practical aspects of dance lighting design.

SOFTWARE DEVELOPMENT

FOUNDER OF CUELIST SOFTWARE

Cuelist is an environmentally friendly, web-based digital collaboration tool that allows entire production teams to share notes and cues on a project in real-time. Users can create a project by uploading a script, score, or any other PDF document. Then, teams of collaborators can be invited to the project and instantly create, edit and share cues and notes directly on the PDF. Every collaborator (Stage Managers, Designers, Ops, Backstage Crew, Faculty Supervisors, etc.) can see script annotations as they are added. Additional information can be found at www.thecuelist.com.
